Being a patient man with a strong will, he did so for four years, till Diamond was sixteen. A big, well-grown youth, good at games and lessons, he was 'still ruddy-faced and bright-eyed and cheerful. He had taken it hard when his voice changed, the sweet treble going all untuned and hoarse. Golden had hoped that that was the end of his singing, but the boy went on wandering about with itinerant musicians, ballad-singers and such, learning all their trash. That was no life for a merchant's son who was to inherit and manage his father's properties and mills and business, and Golden told him so. "Singing time is over, son," he said. "You must think about being a man."

Ivory was my pupil. If I taught him badly, I did worse in sending him away. I thought him insignificant, and so harmless. But he lied to you and beguiled you. You must not feel shame. The fault was his, and mine..".But a year or so later he saw Diamond out in the back garden with his playmate Rose. The children were squatting on their haunches, heads close together, laughing. Something intense or uncanny about them made him pause at the window on the stairs landing and watch them. A thing between them was leaping up and down, a frog? a toad? a big cricket? He went out into the garden and came up near them, moving so quietly, though he was a big man, that they in their absorption did not hear him. The thing that was hopping up and down on the grass between their bare toes was a rock. When Diamond raised his hand the rock jumped up in the air, and when he shook his hand a little the rock hovered in the air, and when he flipped his fingers downward it fell to earth..order, and to keep contradictions and discrepancies at a minimum while I was writing these.Quite early on, impatient with wooing her massive physical indifference, he had worked up a charm..Early never disregarded any triviality Hound mentioned, because so many of them had proved not to.She looked up at him, her sharp, strong face softened by the shadowy lantern-light. She looked at the Doorkeeper; he smiled a little. She followed the pale-haired.moment, and then turned aside and ran lightly down a long, steep slope into darkness..and face twitched, her teeth chattered. He held her close against him, trying to warm her..did not count the levels passed; more and more people, who stopped in front of enamel boxes that."Di," she said, and he looked up. His face was still round and a bit peachy, though the bones were."Nobody loves a sorcerer," said the Archmage. "Well, Irioth! Did I come all this way for you in."Oh, Darkrose," Diamond said, "I love you.".King Maharion sought peace and never found it. While Erreth-Akbe was in Karego-At (which may have been a period of years), the depredations of the dragons increased. The Inward Isles were troubled by refugees fleeing the western lands and by interruptions to shipping and trade, since the dragons had taken to setting fire to boats that went west of Hosk, and harried ships even in the Inmost Sea. All the wizards and armed men Maharion could command went out to fight the dragons, and he went with them himself four times; but swords and arrows were little use against armored, fire-spouting, flying enemies. Paln was "a plain of charcoal," and villages and towns in the west of Havnor had been burnt to the ground. The king's wizards had spell-caught and killed several dragons over the Pelnish Sea, which probably increased the dragons' ire. Just as Erreth-Akbe returned, the Great Dragon Orm flew to the City of Havnor and threatened the towers of the king's palace with fire.."What's changed?". "What say you, Emer?" asked the one like a falcon..He treasured her rustic sayings of that kind. Sometimes she frightened him, and he resented it..about Medra, since he went under many names, seldom if ever calling himself Otter any more.
